About me

My name is Yerkebulan, for most people I am Erke. I am engaged in the development of websites and mobile applications. A few words about my experience it all started from the moment I entered my university in 2021, in my first year I got acquainted with the C++ programming language. During the training period, I studied most of the frameworks for front/back development on my own. By trial and error, I came to be interested in mobile development, and I'm trying to implement complex projects using complex constructors for iOS.
